Over the next few days, the fourth annual Expo Chicago expects to draw tens of thousands of visitors to Navy Pier with the promise of a deep-dish Chicago-style serving of art. Below, a few of the artworks that stood out above the hubbub at yesterday's preview.
9. Sara Greenberger Rafferty at Rachel Uffner
Rafferty’s wonky layering of acrylic and print-out images of stockings suggests an ego spinning around and pulverized in the washing machine of contemporary culture, while still managing to be deftly individual.
